ORTHO-TMD-SLEEP CONNECTION

- | | | | |
|----|--|---|---|
| 1. | It is much easier to treat habits in children rather than wait to treat them after all the permanent teeth erupt. | T | F |
| 2. | Ideal position for the condyle is up and back in the glenoid fossa. | T | F |
| 3. | Patients who present with either an acute or chronic closed lock should be referred to a dentist with special training in treating TMD patients. | T | F |
| 4. | If patients complain of snoring and excessive daytime sleepiness then they should be referred for a sleep study. | T | F |
| 5. | The ideal treatment for children with sleep apnea would be to expand the maxilla and remove the tonsils. | T | F |
